18th and 19th, and New York papers of July 21st. Our Eastern telegraphic advices are to August 18th. Gold had advanced a little and was quoted at 15; per cent prem. The news of the loss of the Golden Gate and her treasure, when received in New York, will probably create a still further advance in the premium on gold. In the Eastern markets, produce ruled at extremely low rates, but there was much speculation in articles affected by the war, sugar, coffee, tobacco, turpentine, &c. The sugar taken over by the Speedwell, (112,000 lbs.) was required by the Collector to be entered under the new tariff, and a deposite made of 5 cents per pound duty; but as no official copy of the tariff had been received in San Francisco, up to the 18th of August, there was some doubt whether it includes the cargo of the Speedwell. The point of doubt is said to be whether the tariff applies to foreign goods in bond and on the way to American ports at the date of its passage or on the 1st of August, the date when it went into force.

In the San Francisco market quotations, we notice no special changes. Flour was receding and quoted at $6 to $7. Barley

The Flying Eagle sailed again yesterday, for Hong Kong. She did not procure treight, the War Hawk having last week taken all that there was ready, including 2400 sacks of superior Hawaiian Flour. We notice that the F. E. has also a large quantity of flour on board. The Yankee has hauled up to her berth, and is taking in cargo. She will be despatched on the 13th inst. The Speedwell is looked for about the 8th to 10th.

The schooner Odd Fellow returned on Monday from scaling voyage. We learn that the expedition has not been as successful as was anticipated.

NEW BEDFORD OIL MARKET-July 18.

Our market for Crude Sperm Oil is well sustained at $1 30 10 gallon, with sales during last week of 3,000 bbis., commencing at $1 25, and closing at $1 30. There are no holders willing to sell below these figures.

Crude Whale is held very firmly by nearly all holders at 60c ♥ gallon. A few parties, however, have been disposed to take less, and the sales at 54 @ 55c. foot up about 1500 bbls. It does not appear as though many more orders can be executed under

There is a good fair demand for Whalebone, with sales of about 15,000 lbs. Arctic and Northwest coast on private terms. Holders generally asking for Arctic and Ochotsk from 75 @ 80c.

COMMERCIAL ITEMS. The ship Henry Brigham has been sold in San Francisco by the U. S. Marshal for $15,250 to U. Simon, Rich and others. Ship Abigail, of New Bedford, 310 tons, which has been in that port since August, 1860, was sold at auction on 28th July. to Simpson Hart, Esq., of New Bedford, for $6,500. Mr. Hart bought her for Loum Snow and others. She will be continued in the whaling business, and sail on or about the first of August for the North Pacific Ocean, under command of Capt. E. F. Nye, late of the Helen Snow, who is also an owner in the Abigail.

Bark Augusta, formerly of Sag Harbor, and condemned as a slaver, was sold at public auction, by Marshal Murray, on 18th ult., for $2,800. Her cargo—an assorted one—brought about $4,000. CHINA.-The great increase of American commerce in China, and particularly at Shanghae, has brought out long articles on the subject from the China papers. One of them says: "Really when we reflect on the increase of American trade in China within our time, we can hardly believe the evidence of our own senses. A quarter of a century ago, the entire American shipping employed in the China trade was below 10,000 tons annually. It now amounts to at least 250,000 tons, and we positively assert that the arms of England effected the change.

THE PACIFIC

Commercial Advertiser.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4. The news from the Seat of War, received last week and this, brings our report down to August 18, but so confused and often unintelligible are the dispatches, that it may be well to glance over the field, and see what is the position of

All eyes are now turned mainly towards Virginia, for there is pitted the strength of both the federal and rebel forces for a grand struggle. After looking at the six days' battles before Richmond in the most favorable light we can, and after reading the minute and glowing descriptions found in the Eastern papers, there is no resisting the conviction that it was decidedly a repulse of the Union army, overpowered by the greater army brought against it. It was not a defeat, but a retreat, which had already been decided on by Gen. M'Clellan, before the attack commenced, and one of the most successful retreats that the history of warfare will record. The rebels had 185,000 men in action, according to their own accounts, and lost 32,000 men. The Union army consisted of 85,000 men, they lost in the six days' battles 1,500 killed, 6,000 wounded, and 3,500 prisoners, making a total of 11,000. This battle of six days before Richmond will constitute one of the most remarkable battles on record. The obstinacy shown in the fighting, the bravery of both armies. and the sufferings of the soldiers form a most heart-rending picture. The rebels fully expected to overwhelm and crush M'Clellan's army by superiority in numbers, but signally failed in the

The result of the battle so far as the South is concerned, is unquestionably in its favor, and will tend temporarily to increase its hopes of success and inspire its soldiers with new enthusiasm. On the side of the North, it has shown the necessity of a largely increased army, and ere this, there are not less than 800,000 in its service. There can hardly be a doubt that there will be centered in Virginia before the first of October not less than 300,000 Union soldiers. The President has been authorized by Congress to call out at his discretion the entire militia of the United States. Tables published in the New York Herald of July 21, give some figures regarding the population and militia of the Union, which show the overwhelming strength of the North, if it be all called out :

2,500,294 5 Loyal slave States, 3.244,698
Tennessee (neutralized,) 826,828
Tennessee (neutralized,) 3,572,270

This is the most concise and convincing exhibit of the relative strength of the two sections that we have seen in print, and shows a difference in favor of the loyal States, in population of 18,-668,623; and in militia, of 2,300,856. The great trouble with the North is that its power has not been drawn out-its government has been holding back the people, till now it feels the necessity of calling out more power. On the other hand, the South has been fully roused and has enrolled by force every man from 16 to 40 years old capable of bearing arms. Thus the struggle promises to be prolonged for some time

The latest advices relating to M'Clellan's army, which are very brief and contradictory, report him as having evacuated Harrison's landing and moved his entire forces to Williamsburg on the peninsula, some miles north of Yorktown, and sixty miles from Richmond, as appears by the following telegram:

FORTRESS MONROE, August 16 .- The Union troops evacuated Harrison's Landing at 8 o'clock this morning, and about the same time McClellan's advance arrived at Williamsburg. The public property was all removed. All quiet.

This is probably correct, but some will question its reliability. If it is true, it will undoubtedly prove to be a ruse to entice the rebels north of Richmond. It will be remembered that there were reports of their evacuating that city and moving south of the James. M'Clellan's movement, it appears to us, may be to draw them North, while he as suddenly moves his forces again south of the James river, perhaps via Norfolk, thence to Suffolk, and thence to Petersburg -all by railway, and takes his position there south of the rebel army, cutting off their avenues of retreat southward, as well as their sources for obtaining supplies, and placing them between Pope and Burnside's armies on the North and his own army on the South. If the Union armies already in Virginia are reinforced by the 300,000 soldiers lately called out, our readers can judge of the trap into which the rebels may be soon enticed and caught. If however, they should conclude to move south of Richmond according to the late reports, and occupy Petersburg, it might frustrate M'Clellan's plans. We may be mistaken in the view taken of the singular movements of the army under M'Clellan, but this appears to be a very plausable explanation.

From Central Virginia, the reports say that another battle was likely to occur between Jackson's forces, numbering from 40,000 to 60,000 and Pope's army near Gordonsville. But "Stonewall" Jackson is a very slippery fellow, and we should not be at all surprised to hear of his darting again up the Shenandoah Valley via the Charlottsville and Staunton Railroad, and creating another fever around Washington. It would be a very risky undertaking, to leave Pope's army in his rear, but he appears to delight in such moves. At the latest dates Pope's army was resting on the North bank of the Rapidan stream, some eight miles north of Gordonsville, where the rebels are reported as being in force. As he was expecting to move forward, we shall hear of an engagement or retreat by the first arrival. We cannot learn from the papers the strength of Pope's army, as no reports of it have been allowed to be published; but it cannot number less than 60,000, as it includes Burnside's, M'Dowell's, Bank's and Fremont's divisions, with probably large reinforcements.

From the West, besides the attempt of the rebel Breckenridge (formerly Vice-President of the United States) to take Baton Rouge, on the Mississippi, there is nothing very important. In this engagement, an account of which is given in our foreign news column, he is reported to have lost his right arm, and suffered a bad defeat. The following about the Arkansas ram is authentic and settles her fate.

New York, Aug. 18 .- A letter from Baton Rogue says the ram Arkansas grounded at a distance of six miles from the city, on the 9th, and was engaged by the Federal gunboat Essex in a fair stand up fight. Capt. W. D. Porter, commander of the Essex, lay three hundred yards distant from the Arkansas, pouring solid 9-inch shot into her until a breach was made, when an incendiary shell exploded in the breach, setting her on fire. The rebel crew then left, and she shortly afterwards exploded.

The call made by the President for 300,000 more troops was being responded to with all the alacrity desired, and they were arriving at Washington at the rate of 5,000 per day. New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maine had raised their full quotas. Missouri had raised 15,000, which was more than her share. Maryland, Kentucky and Western Virginia all promised their full quotas before the time set for them to report, August 15; and what is more singular, as showing the change of public sentiment, five regiments of volunteers had been enrolled in New Orleans, where Gen. Butler's rule was becoming more popular. The difficulty, which threatened to be an importrnt one between him and the foreign consuls of New Orleans, has been settled and harmony restored. The trouble appears to have been that the representatives of foreign governments there desired to side a little too freely with secesh to suit the

The French Princes, who were on Gen. Mc-Clellan's staff returned to Europe in the steamer of Aug. 9. Reports have been circulated that their return arose from want of confidence in the cause. But a Philadelphia paper gives the following explanation. "It is perfectly understood that the reasons for the departure of the French Princes and the English officers are entirely personal, and do not relate to the military situation of our army. The representatives of French royalty have been summoned to attend a meeting of their family, to be held in London about the middle of the present month, on business of vital importance to themselves as elaimants of the French throne. They had announced their intention some weeks ago, to leave at this time, and have made their arrangements accordingly. The furloughs or leave of absence of the English officers have expired and consequently they return." The news from Europe is very favorable. Queen Victoria, in her address proroguing parliament, distinctly takes ground against any intervention on the part of England in the American muddle. This is the position which the British Ministry have all along taken, the cry for intervention being raised mainly by the Times and its provincial echoes. It is the press, not the government, nor the people, which has been loud for intervention. Russia is as strongly opposed to intervention on the part of any European power as ever, and so long as these two powerful nations preserve the attitude they now do, there is no danger of France carrying out her proposed peaceful "meditation" or warlike "intervention.

Thurlow Weed, in reply to a letter from the New York Common Council, has written a very clear exposition of the present state of feeling in Europe towards the North. It appears from his letter that he was sent by the U. S. Government in the capacity of commissioner to visit the various European nations, learn the state of public feeling and confer with the leading men in their governments. He explains the cause and origin of the prejudice and antipathy existing in Europe against the North, and says that he does not apprehend immediately any intervention on the part of the leading powers. The subject has however been considered by them, but as they determine all questions by military measurement, the success of the United States in the prosecution of this war will give them nothing to fear from Europe. Mr. Weed says that the English Government and people really believed, pending the Trent affair, that the Americans desired to embroil themselves with England, and he commends to "the government, the press, and the people of both countries, by enlightened counsels, large toleration, and wise forbearance, to soothe rather than stimulate existing irritations." He asserts unqualifiedly that the Queen and House of Commons "modified harsh dispatches and resisted unfriendly legislation." The real sympathy of the Queen for the United States has been often claimed, and more than one proof has been given of her kindly feelings towards them. Mr. Weed's statement is a valuable corrobation of the fact so generally believed. And we may add that the recent address of the Queen, and the renewed declaration of the Emperor of Russia against intervention sustain the views expressed in his letter. By the latest telegraph advices, we see he has been again despatched by the government to Europe. Capt. M'Intyre, late of the tug-boat Pele. has been appointed a pilot, and Capt. S. James displaced. The latter gentleman has been acting as pilot for the past year under Capt. Howland's commission, and has given great satisfaction to all. Though he long since applied for an appointment to that office, and the Collector formally nominated him to the Minister, yet his claims are now set aside, and another appointed. While we have no fault to find with the new incumbent, we feel it to be a duty to raise our voice against this tyrannical act of the provisional Minister of Finance, in thus riding rough shod over the claims of one who has performed the service with the most entire satisfaction, and who justly merits the place. This is the last official blunder made by a blundering Minister of Finance, who is still permitted to continue his tenure of the office, and perpetrate acts which disgrace the government. How long shall this be permitted? Must the voice of the people be again raised against a public officer, who has been condemned before them, but is still allowed to act with disgrace to his office? Must the people be roused up to other and more effective measures to carry out their verdict, already recorded against him? Let not our government delay too long in cutting off a man whose every act is to harrass the public and weaken the government. Dismiss the Minister at once, and thus remove one of the most irritating grievances existing on the part of the people against the administration. "There is a point beyond which forbearance is a crime."

[Correspondence of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser.] Fort Street Select School.

Being one that has patronized and watched the progress of the Fort Street Select School, from the beginning, which was established by Mr. Brewster about three years since, as a private enterprise, and had hoped that it would have been more especially commended by some more disinterested observer.

Without asking aid in establishing a school for the education of the younger children of the community, Mr. and Mrs. Brewster and Miss Truesdale heir sister, have secured the public patronage, by their superior ability as Teachers and disciplinarians, so that they have now in charge the education of over fifty pupils, whose recent examination at the close of the term, interested and astonished all who were privileged to observe the progress they were making.

Seldom has one, who has been accustomed to attend upon such occasions, been more gratified than on this occasion by the observation of like quiet discipline and thorough drilling in the elementary branches of education, manifested by all the

All of the parents and guardians present were alike gratified, and the children appeared to appreciate the advantages they were enjoying, and to love and respect those who have devoted their time and talents and affections to fitting them for future usefullness. Not only the teachers, but the scholars under their influence, commended themselves especially to all who witnessed their intellectual improvement and moral deportment, and if the public does not appreciate and value the merit, that has, unaided, established a superior school in Honolulu, the children who have enjoyed its advantages, in future years will honor the memory of the teachers in the Fort Street Select School.

And it is to be hoped that the patronage that has sustained the private enterprise we are commending, will become more general and efficient and that the rising generations may not be deprived of the advantages but few as yet have enjoyed. A PATRON.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

THE LATE PRINCE ALBERT .- On Thursday last the remains of His Royal Highness lay in state from 8 A. M. till noon. During the first hour the diplomatic corps and their families visited the Palace, and at 9 o'clock the gates were thrown open to the public generally. The body lay in the Throne Room, and was most beautifully and tastefully dressed in white satin, and the corpse appeared as lifelike as if the child was only sleeping. A constant stream of visitors passed through the Palace during the three hours, and crowds of natives filled the Palace grounds and thoroughfares leading thither, who gave way to their ancient custom of wailing-one of the most affecting exhibitions of sorrow that can be imagined. By the following circular which has been issued, it will be seen that the funeral is to be a private one on Sabbath next at the Palace.

CIRCULAR .- The Ceremony of the Funeral of His late Royal Highness Albert the Prince of Hawaii, will be performed at the Palace, at 11 o'clock, A. M., on Sunday the 7th of September, proximo.

The Funeral will be strictly a private one. By order of the Chamberlain of the King's House-

PALACE, 29th August, 1862.

DRIFT LOGS .- During the schooner Maria's last passage to windward, she passed a large square piece of timber about 30 feet long, and some four feet in thickness, on the 28th ult., about 4 miles to windard of Puna, Hawaii; next morning the same timber was seen again within three quarters of a mile of the shore. On the 29th, another log hove in sight. in length and two in thickness, supposed to be the lower part of a tree. These logs, it is probable, are some of those that were carried off during the floods last winter in Oregon and California. A vessel coming in contact with one of these "ocean rovers," when running free, would be very likely to sustain considerable damage if not total loss.

The Speedwell will be the next vessel from San Francisco, and as she left there about the 26th, will be due here on the 10th. Mr. J. T. Waterhouse, of this place, arrived at San Francisco by the steamer Orizaba, which brought the New York mails of July 21st, and will come on in the Speedwell. The new steamer Constitution, was expected at Panama from New York via Cape Horn, on the 12th of August, to take the mails and passengers which left New York August 1st. She was looked for in San Francisco on the 26th. It is said that Bishop Staley and family are to come on by her, but we have no confirmation of the report.

A FAMILIAR FACE .- Capt. Walden of the clipper Flying Eagle, which touched at this port on Monday, is an old acquaintance of some of our residents. He was here in the brig Tuskar, in 1850, which was condemned, and her hull lay for a long while at Robinson & Co.'s wharf. Capt. W. notices many changes in Honolulu during his absence, but a general improvement and growth in the place. We hope he will visit Honolulu again before many months, where he will always be welcome.

PROTECTION H. & L. COMPANY .- At a regular meeting of this company on Monday Evening last, the following persons were elected officers for the ensuing Foreman-John P. West,

Assistant Foreman-G. W. Houghtailing,

Secretary-C. F. Pfluger, Treasurer-H. Strehz.

The company at present numbers about thirty active members, and is in a flourishing condition, as the gentlemen connected with it appear to take great interest in the organization.

HAWAII APPLES .- We have received from Mr. S. Lake, a sample of the produce of an apple tree growing near Kealakekua, Hawaii. The tree has borne well this season, for a young tree, producing thirty or forty apples, as fine looking fruit as could be desired. Mr. Lake thinks that this fruit will yet be grown in abundance on that island.

We are under obligations to Capt. Walden of the Flying Eagle, for later San Francisco and Eastern papers than received from other sources. On behalf of the passengers of the steamer Kilauea, we may also thank him for his kindness in supplying them with papers, a boat from the steamer having boarded the ship on Monday afternoon, off Diamond

FIREMAN'S FUNERAL .- On Sunday last, the Fire Companys (five in all,) turned out in full uniform to attend the funeral of one of their fellow-members, JOHN W. CORNWELL, a member of Company No. 1. The procession was very long, as each company was well-represented, accompanied by a large number of the citizens in carriages and on foot."

Charles Coffin Harris, Esq., has been appointed Attorney General of this Kingdom. He left in the steamer on Monday last, on his first official tour to

A call for a Public meeting at the Court-House, at 12 o'clock to-day, will be observed in the next column. We trust that the meeting will draw out a full attendance.

The Appropriation Bill for the years 1862.3 will be found on our fourth page. The same can be had on slips at our counter

BRITISH CONSUL GENERAL .- His Majesty's Govern ment has received WM. WEBB FOLLETT SYNGE, as Commissioner and Consul General to represent the British Government at this Court. Mr. Synge temporarily occupies the residence of Dr. J. Mott Smith on Beretania Street. We understand that a funeral sermon on the death of Prince Albert of Hawaii, will be preached by Rev. Mr. Damon, at the Fort Street Church, on Sunday evening next.

THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTIONS were passed at a meeting of the Hawaiian Cavalry, Aug. 29: Whereas, it has pleased the Almighty Ruler of the Universe In his inscrutable and allwise providence, to remove from our midst, our late Corporal, His Royal Highness Prince Albert of Hawaii; therefore, be it

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in his allwise dealings, to remove by death from this world of cares and troubles, of much beloved, the child of the people and hope of the nation, the Prince of Hawaii; therefore,

Resolved-That the announcement of the death of the Prince of Hawaii, has filled our hearts with great sorrow. Resolved-That in the decease of the Prince of Hawaii, His Royal Parents have lost an affectionate and much beloved child. This community has lost a hope towards which it has looked with ardent joy, and this Corps has lost a member, from whom at some future time, they hoped to receive counsel and support,

Remembering that though dead, his memory shall be cherished with us to the close of life. Resolved-That the Secretary be instructed to transcribe these Resolutions in the minutes of this meeting and forward a copy to the Royal Parents, and also request the publication of the same in the papers of the city.

J. A. Hassinger, Secretary.
